Paediatric nursing in Europe: influencing policy and practice

Abstract

The WHO European Health Report 2005 called for significant efforts from all countries to protect and promote children's health. Nurses across Europe have a major role to play in this effort but in many countries they lack the appropriate education and organisational support to make a meaningful contribution. A network of paediatric nursing associations in Europe was formed in 2003 to strengthen nurses' voices in child health policy and improve the potential of nurses to contribute to protecting and promoting the health of children and young people.

Based on a consensus definition of the European paediatric nurse, the

Definition of a paediatric nurse

PNAE members used the International Council of Nurses (ICN 1998) definition as the foundation for consensus on the definition of a paediatric nurse:

A nurse who has successfully completed a recognised course of study and practice experience in the nursing care of infants, children and adolescents/young people.

The 'core tasks' of paediatric nursing are also outlined and include:

- rights-based, holistic, child and family-centred care
- promotion of physical and mental health and well-being
- accident and disease prevention
- child protection
- care of infant, child and adolescent with: acute/chronic/life-threatening/limiting physical and mental conditions; disability/impairment (physical/intellectual/sensory) in all healthcare settings.
